

Appendix C

Original Drug Patent Rights Duration

New drugs developed by international pharmaceutical laboratories conserve exclusivity rights or patent rights between eight and ten years on average. After this period the innovator of the drug loses exclusivity and the drug becomes off-patent. Only then generic versions of the same original drug are permitted to be marketed.

Chart 11. New Drug Patent Rights Life Cycle

